WORK

Let me but do my work from day to day
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market-place or tranquil room:
Let me but find it in my heart to say,
When flagrant wishes beckon me astray,
"This is my work: my blessing, not my doom:
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way.

Then shall I see it not too great, nor small,
To suit my spirit and to prove my powers;
Then shall I cheerful greet the labouring hours
And cheerful turn, when the long shadows fall
At eventide, to play and love and rest,
Because for me I know my work is best.

By Henry Van Dyke

Dover Day, in which those of us whose lives have been enriched by the vision, accomplishment and influence of the late Mr. and Mrs. John R. Dover, has come to be an institution to which this church and its community look forward each first Sunday in October.

On that day we pay honor again to the great industrialist and benefactor whose dream of a model plant and community surrounding it — the Dover and Ora mills and their villages are his "dream children" — continues as abreast of the times as when the mills were founded.

We would keep faith with them by trying to ever live up to the ideals which their lives and action personified and to maintain the fine understanding and humanity, generous friendship and religious devotion which enables hearts to appreciate and feel them always amongst us.
