1970 CAPITAL FUND CAMPAIGN TO INSURE CONTINUING QUALITY

A 1970 capital fund campaign will help Gardner-Webb College insure that it meets four-year accreditation requirements in quality fashion.

Looking forward to the time that G-W would be a full senior college, trustees decided as early as 1968 to make a pre-campaign survey on the need for services. On the basis of the survey, the board decided in May this year to proceed with a campaign early in 1970.

No goals had been set at this writing. Dr. E. Eugene Paxson, college president, said committees of trustees and advisors were working to determine what buildings and endowments will be needed to insure continued accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. These needs will determine the campaign goals.

Dr. Paxson said a major "need" right now is enlargement of the library building to provide more reading area and space for increased book holdings. Some other needs cited in preliminary studies are enlargement of physical education facilities, dormitories and endowment for operation, instruction and scholarships.

Dr. Paxson said that, although intensive planning for the campaign will be under way much earlier, the drive itself will not be launched until early spring at meetings of business and industrial leaders and alumni.

The consulting firm of Marks & Lundy,

Inc., has been engaged to assist the college in planning and carrying out the campaign. This firm also assisted in two previous capital fund drives—a 1959-60 campaign that raised $337,212 and a 1964-65 campaign that raised $2,745,938.

Again serving as the Marks & Lundy resident director working with the college staff will be Otto W. Ferrene, Martins, N. C., resident well-known to Gardner-Webb alumni and friends. His background and broad association with the college in the past make him uniquely fitted for the job.

Alumni will be given further information about the campaign as soon as final plans are developed. This "early" announcement is aimed at making you aware now that an opportunity for serving G-W will exist. Your help will make it possible for your college to continue providing an education with extra dimensions.

John Beam Named To Development Post

North Carolina educator and layman John Beam joined Gardner-Webb College as director of development Nov. 1. He comes to the campus from Belmont (N. C.) Abbey College, where he was dean of students.

JOHN BEAM

Deloit high schools in the Gaston County school system, and was employed for nine years by Pylon Spinning Corp. in Lowell.

As a Baptist layman, he served four years on the general board of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina. He also has served as an officer of the Gaston Baptist Association Brotherhood and as music director of Alcoa Baptist Church.

IT'S OFFICIAL: NO 'JUNIOR' NOW

North Carolina Baptists, meeting in November convention, officially dropped the "junior" from Gardner-Webb's name. Now it's just "Gardner-Webb College."

The change was made in line with the college's new status as a four-year school named of a junior college.

The State Baptist Convention of North Carolina also last month granted the college approval to borrow $400,000 to construct a dormitory. Presently, more than 200 students live off-campus and construction is expected to increase. Repayment of the debt is expected to come from room rentals from the new dorm. Construction plans are to be announced in the future.

WINSTON, GASTON ALUMNI MEET

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. Alumni Chapter members gathered Nov. 11 for a warm, friendly evening of fellowship at First Baptist Church, L. Ransom (Dew) McDonald '51, was elected president to succeed Glenn Perryjohn '52, retiring officer who presided. Also elected were Jack Bracken '61, vice president; Miss Ann Abbott '68, secretary; and Mrs. Jella Clegg Crawley '42, treasurer. J. Randolph Elrod, director of alumni activities, showed the group the film "The Extra Dimension."

HOLDING A JOINT session in Gastonia Nov. 15 were members of the Churches, Belmont, Dallas, Kings Mountain and Greenville-Bessemer City chapters. Bill McSwain, Gastonia Chapter president, presided and welcomed all to dinner in the Chase Village Cafeteria Gold Room. College President E. Eugene Poston told about G-W's plans for meeting the challenge of four-year status.

"We are going to continue to serve the students of our area first," he said.

Coach Eddie Holbrook also spoke on G-W sports, forecasting season possibilities for basketball and baseball.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Chapter members are planning a meeting Jan. 25 at the Old Club Restaurant in Alexandria, Va. Mrs. Joe Blankenship Kennedy '58, chapter president, is heading arrangements, and will announce further details. Put the date on the calendar now!

Home Missionary Appointment Made

A formal confirmation service for Carol Ann Tennant's appointment as a Home Missionary by the Southern Baptist Convention Home Mission Board was held Oct. 26 in Docteur, Ga. Carol, formerly of Bowling Springs, but now of Greenville, S. C., graduated from Gardner-Webb in 1964, joined the B. A. College in 1966 from Carver-Newman College and the M. R. E. degree in 1968 from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

She is associate director of the Baptist Goodwill Center in Greenville, S. C., where she has served for over a year. While in secretary she worked at the Baptist Goodwill Center in Louisville, Ky. She lives at 34 South Estate in Greenville, S. C.

Former G-W Trustee Takes Florida Job

Former Gardner-Webb trustee Keener Pharr has been named director of the education division of the Florida State Baptist Convention, headquartered in Jacksonville. He assumed the post after a 10-year stint with the Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville.

MINISTRY BEGAN AT G-W

Dr. Hammett Retires At Year-End

Dr. Horace Greeley Hammett is retiring December 31 this year as the general secretary-treasurer of the South Carolina Baptist Convention, bringing to a close "an era of Christian service and unselfish leadership of one of God's chosen servants."

His illustrious career had roots deeply interwoven in the school that's now Gardner-Webb College, and Dr. Hammett himself has deep affection for the campus, its leaders and its youth.

Born in 1901 to a Cherokee County, S. C., farm family, he entered Bowling Springs High School in 1921 and flourished in three years while learning in football, basketball, baseball and track. He taught school for a year, then entered Furman University, continuing his record-setting participation in athletics. He was one of the first in the South to run 100 yards in 16 seconds.

HORACE HAMMETT

BECOMING GARDNER-WEBB'S first full-time coach after graduation from Furman, he taught English and math in addition to coaching four sports. His teams had good records, and he was popular with students and townspeople. On the campus he met a young music teacher, Loren Woody, only child, gently broad, Meredith College graduate, ignorant of sports as he was of music. But she suddenly developed an interest in football—and he began to appreciate music. They teamed up to write Gardner-Webb's Alma Mater—he, the lyrics, she, the music—and say they nearly discovered their courtship in squabbles over it.

THE YEAR 1929 was a turning point in his life. His G-W sports were doing well, and he was in training to run for the United States in the Olympics. Then a serious illness struck him. Even near death, the track star knew what to do. He realized that his "training" had been mostly from God's call. He promised to run no more.

In the spring, recovered, he responded to the call in a packed Bowling Springs church. His players were there to see for themselves. The townspeople almost applauded. His fiancee had a multitude of emotions. The impact of his commitment swept the whole campus into spontaneous revival.

The track shoes were not used in the Olympics—the coaching days were over. Following the Hammetts' marriage that summer, they moved to Louisville and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary.

FOLLOWING THE seminary years, Dr. Hammett served churches in Williamstown and Great Falls, S. C., and in Waverlyville and Durham, N. C. He became assistant general secretary-treasurer of the S. C. convention in 1956, and 11 years later was elected to fill the post of general secretary-treasurer.

The Hammetts have two sons and two grandchildren.

Dr. Hammett still likes to run—he sometimes jogs four miles a day—and work in his garden growing "yuccas." He'll have a little more time after retirement.

Friends expect, though, he'll continue serving in many roles. One of them will be as promotional consultant for The Baptist Courier, based in Greenville, S. C.

It yet remains to be seen just how large our web will grow, but this much we know, once you're written in, we never let you go. This is the spirit of Gardner-Webb.

Brooks Promoted

Thornton N. Brooks has been appointed assistant to the publisher of the Barber (S. C.) Daily Item. He will expand and improve the newspaper's advertising and circulation. He attended the New York University School of Commerce after leaving Gardner-Webb. He previously was associated in administrative positions with J. P. Stevens Co., Inc. and Brooks Insurance, Inc., advertising consulting firm.

Area basketball fans had an opportunity to meet the 1969-70 Gardner-Webb team members on "Meet the Bulldogs Night" Nov. 18 in East gymnasium. Activities included an intramural scrimmage, question-and-answer discussion and informal social hour in the Bulldog Club lounge.

Representing the college at the Nov. 16-17 meeting in Fayetteville of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina were Dr. E. Eugene Potts, president, Thomas J. McCann, vice president for academic affairs, William E. Boyd, director of programing, Randy Elrod, director of alumni activities, and Dr. Robert Lamb and Jerry Hill, faculty members.

The G-W chorus group was part of a 250-voice choir which sang at the Nov. 16 opening session of the Baptist state convention. The group joined with singers from the state's other Baptist colleges in moving selections from great church composers and contemporary works.

Brush and Sordik, campus harmony society for students creative in art, music, and literature, sponsored events in November designed to display fruits of student talent and imagination. Paintings, sculpture and poetry were arranged for viewing in the lounge-gallery of G. Max Gaudner Building. An evening "happening" in the lounge featured performances of original student-composed music.

The famed Springs Art Show will be displayed on G-W's campus Dec. 3-14. This will be the first public view of the all-new show in the South, and many visitors are expected for the event.

Art works by G-W alumnae, Ford McDonald '65, were displayed in a one-man show on the campus in mid-November. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, he now is an assistant for the Shelby (N. C.) Public Schools.

An outstanding chapel speaker Nov. 11 was Dr. Karl Leyseneyer of Philadelphia, Pa., European author, educator and editor who is a (first-hand) authority on international affairs, communism, the Soviet system and world problems.

Nursing Department Grows With G-W

Gardner-Webb College's Department of Nursing, with 57 freshmen and sophomores presently enrolled, is in the midst of a dynamic, productive year.

The nursing classrooms, laboratory and offices have been moved to separate, more spacious quarters in the David Lindsay Building, formerly the Baptist Church educational facility. Approximately $5,000 worth of new audio-visual aids have been purchased, and two faculty members—Mrs. Margerie Adams and Miss Ann Pearce—have returned after earning master's degrees at Emory University.

The Associates Degree Nursing Program was established in 1965 in cooperation with Richwood and Cleveland Memorial hospitals. It was the second two-year program in the state then. Now there are nine.

The first class yielded 26 graduates now practicing throughout the state and nation. To date, a total of 62 students have graduated and written state board examinations to become registered nurses.

Students carry 17 or 18 hours for each of four semesters. Clinical laboratory experiences in the hospital are increased as the student progresses. Freshmen begin with a three-hour practice period with patients each week. This is increased to six hours the second semester. They learn to give basic care to less than critically ill patients. During second semester, they learn about surgical techniques and spend some time in the operating room. They study at both cooperating hospitals. As sophomores they study major health problems and learn to give special care to patients with these diseases.

Mrs. Grace Lee is director of the department. Other faculty members are Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Reba Austin and Mrs. Shirley Tracy, for freshmen, and Miss Pearce, Mrs. Lee Bradley and Mrs. Pat Mead, for sophomores.
