Accreditation Benefits Alumni

Alumni Association President John E. Roberts says the college's former students will benefit from its recent accreditation as a four-year college.

Dr. Roberts, editor of The Baptist Courier in South Carolina, adds, "Alumni stand more to gain from accreditation than any other group except present and future students."

Accreditation was granted Dec. 1 by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.

"Our alma mater has gained status and recognition by meeting accreditation standards," Dr. Roberts says. "Alumni share in this new plateau of prestige. We offer a pat on the back to the administration along with the plea that Gardner-Webb retain the outstanding quality that we have known. This has been its tradition of maintaining the dignity of each individual student and his needs, with an emphasis on the extra dimension of Christian education. Gardner Webb's deep interest in each student has been its strength."

College Accredited

1971: A Great Year For G-W

THE year 1971 was one of the greatest in Gardner-Webb College's history. Its splendor included senior college accreditation, the virtual doubling of a $1.5 million fund campaign, a first senior graduating class, and national recognition in the IMA of sports.

Accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools came Dec. 1 upon G-W's first application.

The college had crossed senior college ranks in the Fall of 1969 and graduated 350 students two years later. Two years of intensive study and investigation preceded the accreditation.

G-W had to reach certain physical standards to meet requirements. To achieve these, a capital gifts campaign to raise $1.5 million was begun, converted for a new library, converting the present library into classrooms, doubling the present administration building and constructing a new dormitory.

This past year, the fund drive passed the $2,600,000 mark. College officials feel that the campaign helped convince accreditation officials that the school had the support of its community.

THE appearance on the campus of nationally known figures—Billy Graham, Johnny Cash, N. C. Governor Bob Scott—brought worldwide attention to the school.

Well-known singer Cash was presented an honorary doctor of humanities degree for his work in the fields of prison and drug reform and his work with alcoholics.

IN sports, G-W retained its national image as it shifted to senior college status.

The basketball team closed out its 1970-71 season with a 20-4 record and seventh place ranking in NAIA polls. The golf team, first to represent G-W in senior tournament play, finished fifth in the NAIA national tournament.

G-W teams produced two All-Americans. George Adams of Kings Mountain became the first to hold to earn the title in senior college competition. He was named to the NAIA first-team All-American basketball squad and also named a first-team berth on the TV Cash All-American squad picked by the Basketball Writers of America. Golfer Terry Florence of Charlotte finished third in the NAIA national golf tourney and was named to the golf All-American team.

Alumni Council Hears Annual Fund Report: Going Up

G-W's Annual Fund already has surpassed last year's, but the goal still hasn't been met. That was the report given by Jerry Wilcox, director of alumni activities, to members of the Alumni Council at their January meeting.

Wilcox reported that $5,600 had been contributed to date toward the 1972 Annual Fund goal of $25,000. Total contributions in 1971 were $1,729 in 1970 they came to $6,401. They totaled $7,751 in 1969 and $5,537 in 1968. This year's campaign is in full swing and all alumni are being given an opportunity to participate in aid.

The Alumni Council, meeting in quarterly session on campus, is composed of alumni association officers and deacons, chapter presidents, class agents and members of the faculty alumni committee.

banquet will be held at 7 p.m. May 13 on the Charles I. Dover Campus Center.

Members also voted to present up to three awards from the association to alumni who perform distinguished service to Gardner-Webb, to the church, or to their community. These will be given at the banquet in addition to the coveted "Alumnus of the Year Award", which is given by the college upon nominations by the board of trustees.

Alumni President John Roberts introduced Dr. J. Ray Johnson, new coordinator of development and external affairs at Gardner-Webb.

Council members' wives or husbands were entertained during their visit to the campus with music by student folkingers, an art exhibit and a talk on admissions by Janet Whitmore of the college staff.

They rejoined the council for a buffet dinner in the faculty dining room as the day's activities concluded.

With The Alumni

'30 The Rev. Woodrow W. Hill '37 became assistant editor of The Bible Record effective Jan. 15. The paper is the journal of the Baptist State Convocation of North Carolina. # Trustees, Advisors Organize

R. PATRICK SPANGLER

Gardner-Webb's board of trustees and board of advisors both elected new officers and welcomed new members in December.

R. Patrick Spangler, Shelby businessman, was elected trustee chairman, succeeding Lloyd C. Best of Shelby. Spangler has served two previous terms as chairman and presently is national chairman of the college's capital gifts campaign.

Stan A. Lovelock, general manager of General Paperworking Co. of Forest City, has been named chairman of the board of advisors.

Serving with Spangler as officers of the board of trustees are Mrs. Ruth Stroup of Shelby, vice chairman; Miss Charles Stoney of Feltton, secretary; A. T. Withrow of Charlotte, treasurer; Paul Bridgus of Cliffside, assistant secretary; and C. H. Hamill of Lenoir, assistant treasurer.

Nine new trustees added to the board were previously elected by the State Baptist Convention of North Carolina. They are J. Wayne Burns of Lincolnton, J. Toliver Davis of Asheville, Fred West of Gastonia, Mrs. L. P. Franz of Hickory, Woodrow W. Jones of Rutherfordton, and Robert C. Smith, W. A. Wallace, Howard Biggers Jr. and Arthur C. Garrison, all of Charlotte.

Other new officers of the board of advisors are Donald Warren of Spindale, vice chairman, Walter Brown of Geffrey, S. C., secretary; and Charles Alexander of Kings Mountain, assistant secretary.

New members of the board of advisors are Walter Brown and Bill E. O'Brien, both of Gallberry, S. C.; Sam Hagan of Rutherfordton; B. B. Horn of Forest City; W. J. Kiser of High Point; Jack Lutz of Carolina, Charles F. Manney of Kings Mountain; Aaron B. Moss of Cherryville, and Harold Causby, Jack Ramsey, J. V. Schweppe, Clyde Satts and Paris L. Yelton, all of Shelby.

Alumni Can Help In Recruiting

College President E. Eugene Patton says that recruiting qualified students is a "number one" priority for Gardner-Webb this year and next.

Alumni are asked to help in this important phase of the college's life. A healthy enrollment is essential if G-W is to continue its strong and varied academic program.

Dr. Patton pointed out that recruiting efforts must be increased in view of the fact that many high schools will be graduating smaller classes this year than in the past. Competition among colleges for these students will be greater.

Also, since G-W reached four-year status, it will lose some prospects who will seek a junior college.

"We are looking for the student who wants quality education in a Christian environment," Dr. Patton said.

He added that G-W is aware of the difference in educational costs between public colleges and private institutions.

"We want prospects to know, however, that financial aid is available and that we will do our best to help the students who need it," he added.

Nearly every alumnus can serve as a G-W recruiter. It's a contribution that requires no money, but one which can benefit the college greatly.

Here's how: Contact the High School students you know. Tell them about Gardner-Webb Send in the "prospector" form below, so that the college can send them literature and information if possible, invite them and their parents to visit the campus. You can make arrangements through the alumni office. Your help will be deeply appreciated.

Do you know of some qualified students who might be interested in Gardner-Webb? If so, clip this out and return to the Alumni Office, Gardner-Webb College, Building Springs, N. C. 28017.

IN MEMORIAM

John Asford Berry '18 of Fountain Inn, S. C., died Nov. 8, 1971.

William B. Walker '26 of Plymouth, N. C., died Oct. 26, 1971, after a brief illness.

Bulldogs, George Adams Ranked High

Gardner-Webb's Bulldogs posted the mid-January point of their 1971-72 season with a healthy 15-2 win-loss record.

They had a fourth place national rating in the NAIA, and were rated as the highest scoring basketball team in the NAIA with a per-game average of 107.5 points. Their 22-point victory margin was second in the nation.

Individually, All-American George Adams, the big Kings Mountain senior, had a 31.5 points per game average. He was shooting a fine 66.2 per cent from the floor and 76 per cent from the free throw line. And he was averaging better than 12 rebounds per game.

Adams' scoring was expected to keep him near the top in the NAIA scoring race. He led the NAIA the first week, but slipped to second place in the second week's rankings.

A physical education major, the 6-8, 235-pound Adams picked Gardner-Webb as his college because it was near his home. He says he hasn't regretted his choice.

"I think I've had individual attention here that I might not have received somewhere else," a reporter quoted him. "If I had gone to a larger school I might never have been given a chance."

Adams has begun thinking about pro ball, but isn't letting such thoughts interfere with his goals this year: a high national ranking and a trip to the national finals in Kansas City for the team.

He's leaving contacts with pro agents to his mentor and coach, G-W Athletic Director Eddie Holbrook, who says it'll be handled legally and sensibly.

Meanwhile, Adams is making plans for another kind of contact—he plans to marry his high school sweetheart this spring.

New Evening School Offers Variety

Twenty-eight courses are being offered in Gardner-Webb College's new evening school, which began Jan. 6.

They include freshman-to-senior instruction in art, biology, business administration, data processing, education, English, geography, health, history, library science, mathematics, music, political science, psychology, religion, science education, sociology, Spanish, speech and theatre arts.

Classes are being held on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

A free course, "Highlights of American History," is being taught by Dr. Arthur Nuhrah for interested high school students and adults. Unstructured and non-credit, it offers a fresh look at some of the important events, issues and personalities of American history.

Two Coliseum Games Coming Up

Gardner-Webb's Bulldogs have two "soft-shoot" games coming up, both of which may be opportunities for Adams in other parts of the state to see the team play.

On Feb. 18, they'll compete against Guilford College in the Greensboro Coliseum. On Feb. 23, they'll take on Western Carolina University in Charlotte Coliseum. Both games will precede professional games of the Carolina Coliseum.

The Bulldogs were to take off for Mexico City Feb. 9 along with a host of Bulldog Club members and other fans, for a tournament at the University of Mexico. They were scheduled to return Feb. 13.
