Summer School, Camps Planned

Gardner-Webb's campus will busy with academic sessions, youth camps and workshops this summer.

Two sessions of regular summer school will be offered, with courses in nearly all academic areas. The first session is scheduled June 5-July 7 and the second, July 8-Aug. 11. Also, some one, two and three-week workshops for credit toward teacher renewal certificates will be offered. Catalogs and other information can be secured by writing Jesse Taylor at Gardner-Webb.

The college also has applied to the State Education Commission for grants to conduct two workshops for teachers. One three-week workshop will be for upgrading the teaching of English, the other 12-day session, also for teachers, will be in economics.

At least 14 camp sessions for young people and groups already are planned for the summer in sports and other areas. The campus is offering facilities for other groups and can furnish faculty members for instructors, counselors, etc.

Also, Gardner-Webb will accept a limited number of rising high school seniors for academic work during the summer. Upon their graduation from high school and their acceptance by Gardner-Webb, they would be accorded college credit for those completed courses. A student could thus complete up to 15 hours' credit before he becomes a college freshman at G-W.

Information on any of these programs can be secured by writing Mr. Taylor at the college.

Alumni Banquet Slated May 13

It's time to start making plans now to attend Gardner-Webb's annual alumni banquet and class reunions, slated for Saturday, May 13, the day before campus commencement exercises.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. in the Charles I. Dover Campus Center and special plans are in the works to make it one of the most festive.

Classes in regular reunion will be those of

J. R. Dover Memorial Library Construction Set

Gardner-Webb College's new John R. Dover, Sr. Library will be under construction in a few weeks in one of the finest structures of its kind in the Carolinas.

College officials announced that the three-floor building will contain more than 45,000 square feet of floor space and will have space for more than 150,000 books.

The building is named in honor of John R. Dover, Sr., whose family has meant so much to the college in past years. This community-minded man founded the Dover Tennis Club and he and his family have made it possible for scores of young people to get an education, who would not have otherwise, through all types of scholarships.

The library's basement floor will house a teaching material center, an audio-visuals laboratory, a library-science classroom, a record room and some book stacks and a study area.

The main floor will include the periodicals area and a special collection room with archives for donated collections. There will be a reference section, circulation area, card catalog, library offices and a lounge for the staff and a staff work area along with an outside landing dock.

The third floor will have seating space, book stacks and individual and group study rooms.

The new building will be constructed in an area now being used for a parking lot on the south end of the campus near the college's Boy Physical Education Building.

1913, 1918, 1925, 1928, 1955, 1936, 1945, 1948, 1955, 1958, 1965, 1968. As an extra feature, meetings for these classes are being scheduled just prior to the banquet so that old friends and classmates can renew acquaintances.

Special festivities also are planned for the 25th anniversary class of 1947 and the 50th anniversary class of 1922.

Further details will be announced in the April issue.

Alumni: Information About G-W Colors?

The staff of The Pilot, Gardner-Webb's student newspaper, is trying to solicit information concerning the college colors. It seems that the colors aren't quite specific. The original colors were red and black, but in recent years they have become black and red and white.

The staff wants to know if any alumni can recall the origin or reason these colors were chosen, what the original colors were, and the significance of the colors. Any information can be addressed to The Pilot, Gardner-Webb College, Rolling Springs, N. C. It would be greatly appreciated.

Weavings

The Ballet Dorce Company, a group of six young people who have appeared on college campuses for the past five years, appeared at G-W Feb. 21. They're directed by Yari Chatal, niece of Russin and also director of the Memphis Civic Ballet.

Dr. Gandy Wilson, member of the Billy Graham evangelistic team, was featured speaker at a meeting of the Baptist Laymen's Witnessing Foundation Feb. 18-19 on campus.

"The Rio Expeditions," the award-winning film account of a peyote boat which sailed from Africa to America, was shown on campus in February.

G-W's fifth annual Prayers Conference was held Feb. 28-Mar. 3 with outstanding pastors and Bible teaching scholars as leaders.

Two students, Dacyl Corley of Union, S. C., and Renee Thomas of Hockeburg, S. C., will have articles published in a spring issue of North Carolina Wildlife Magazine. They wrote them as part of a project for an introductory biology class.

Dr. John Claypool, well-known Southern Baptist pastor, was featured speaker at the five-day Religious Emphasis Week at G-W Feb. 7-11. Theme of the week was "It's the end here," emphasizing the need for responsible involvement in solving problems of the world and individual.

Campaign Underway In Forest City Area

G-W's capital gifts campaign is underway in the Forest City area with Robert A. Jones as area chairman.

A goal of $80,000 has been set by the town's citizens as a part of G-W's campaign for funds to construct a new library, dormitory, additional administration space and converting the present library into a classroom building.

Other leaders in the Forest City campaign are W. Eugene Skulford, special gifts chairman; Forest Hunt, arrangements chairman; Mrs. F. I. Barber Jr., attendance chairman; Jack Lutz, general gifts chairman, and Paul Bridges and Joyce Grindstaff, division leaders.

This part of the campaign involves Forest City, Beeson, Caroleen, Cliffside, Ellenboro and Henrietta.

G-W Annual Fund: For A Purpose

Why support Gardner-Webb's Annual Fund? Two of the college's alumni give eloquent testimonials:

Listen to Dr. Nolan P. Howington, Sr., '36, of Nashville, Tenn., curriculum consultant of the Church Training Department of the Southern Baptist Convention Sunday School Board.

"The persons connected with the college introduced me to key concepts that have instructed my mind, deepened my love for knowledge and provided insights that have been fundamental through the years," he says.

Dr. Howington supports the Annual Fund because this fund helps Gardner-Webb as "the development of human lives in the direction of character and usefulness in keeping with the purpose of God, the enrichment of reliable personalities and the shaping of those personalities after the mind of Christ; the equipping of persons to fill creatively the various vocations and leadership positions before them; and the cultural, intellectual, religious impact of the college upon the life of a region and beyond it." He continues: "These concerns I would consider to others as a motivation for support of the school."

Listen to Billy G. McSwain '51 of Gastonia, hospital consultant and director of McSwain and Associates.

"... The growth of the college and the work it is currently doing stimulates me in my day-to-day endeavors. . . I see the proud father of five children. These children need a good Christian education before going out on their own. The small amount of work I do and the small amount of funds I contribute will help to assure me that when they are ready for college, Gardner-Webb will be there with her doors open."

The Annual Fund drive is underway now, as a "living endowment" for our alma mater. A record $25,000 goal has been set.

BULLDOGS ALL—Zeno Hansen, president and chairman of the board of Mack Trucks, is greeted by college president Dr. E. Eugene Patten and other G-W well-wishers upon his arrival at the airport.

'No. 1 Bulldog' Visits Campus

The "Chief Bulldog" of Mack Trucks, Inc., the nation's No. 1 firm in diesel truck sales, paid a visit to Gardner-Webb "Bulldog Country" in mid-February.

Zeno Hansen, president and chairman of the board of Mack Trucks whose symbol is the Bulldog, toured the campus, was a guest at a dinner and reception at the college president's home and was recognized at the Bulldogs' basketball game.

Every truck Hansen makes has a bulldog on the hood, his clothing and even his pipe bear the bulldog insignia, and his home is crisscrossed with memorabilia—notably bulldogs that's collected or been given.

He presented a sculptured bronze bulldog to G-W President E. Eugene Patten and small lapel pin bulldogs to the crowd of students and others who met his jet at Shelby Municipal Airport and rolled out a red carpet for him.

Hansen said he accepted the invitation to visit G-W because "I liked the tone and spirit and enthusiasm that were in the letters we received from Dr. Patten and Coach Holbrook, particularly The code of conduct made an impression on me. I even went ahead and joined the Bulldog Club. . . We at Mack Trucks try to promote patriotism and citizenship and Gardner-Webb College seems to be doing the same thing. . . The college is very attractive and the campus is apparently well planned. I was impressed with the new and modern buildings. But I've impressed most with the enthusiasm of everyone I've met."

In halftime ceremonies in the basketball rink against UNC Asheville, Hansen was presented certificates making him a lifetime member of the Bulldog Club.

WE'LL MISS 'EM—Four senior basketball stars were honored at halftime when G-W's Bulldogs defeated UNC Asheville 99-83 in the last regular home game of the season. Shown with Director of Public Relations William E. Boyd are, left to right, stars Tony Spiveak, Richard Thomas, George Adams and Dennis DeSantis, all of whom are closing out great careers with G-W's colors. At the season draw to a close, the Bulldogs maintained their third-place ranking in the NAIA. A highlight of the season was their clean sweep of a three-day Mexico Invitational Tournament in Mexico City, Mexico, in February. They defeated the University of Guadalajara, 113-52, Monterrey Tech 79-65, and the University of Mexico 99-82 to win the tournament. The Bulldogs were to take on Western Carolina University at the Charlotte Coliseum Feb. 25 in making their final bid for the district playoff.
