Scholarship Funds Given

The Fellowship of Christians United in Service, a campus student group, has contributed $5,000 toward scholarships for students enrolled in church-related vocational education programs at Gardner-Webb.

The gift was presented to the Christian Service Foundation of Gardner-Webb, composed of colleges and community residents and devoted to raising and providing scholarships for students in church-related fields.

The money was raised by student revival teams—preachers, music directors, youth activity directors and other team members—conducting services in the two Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia and Florida. Team members donated all of their services, contributing funds given by the churches to the scholarship fund.

The check was presented to Dr. Thurman Lewis, president of the Christian Service Foundation, by Leland Kerr, who will serve next school year as president of G-W's Baptist Student Union.

The Foundation itself has raised more than $10,000 for scholarships in less than a year.

Program Approved

G-W's teacher education program has received approval for a three-year period upon recommendation of the State Examination Committee on Teacher Education of the N. C. State Board of Education.

This action means that teacher graduates from the college will be granted teaching certificates upon recommendation from the Gardner-Webb faculty without having their transcripts evaluated by a state agency.

Approval was granted following a visit to the campus by a full investigating committee from the state board of education.

Nursing Grads Set High Mark

Gardner-Webb's nursing program, considered by many as one of the South's finest, has some figures which help its claim to such honors.

A check of the five classes graduated by the college's department of nursing shows that, of 111 graduates since the program began in 1967, 106 have passed the State Board of Nursing Examination. Only three have not passed this state exam for a license to practice as a registered nurse.

The 17 who were graduated in May this year were to take their state board exams June 28.

"We are very pleased with the progress of our students," said Mrs. Grace Lee, director of the department of nursing. "I feel that this must be some kind of a record to have such a high percentage of students to pass the boards. We are most pleased with our program and proud of our students."

Nursing is a two-year program at G-W, including much classroom work as well as practical training in area hospitals.

A majority of the program's graduates are employed now in area hospitals.

RIISING SKYWARD—Construction on the new John R. Dover Jr. Memorial Chapel on campus was highlighted in June by the rising of this gleaming white, 15,000 steel and porcelain spec. Rising 227 feet from the top step of the chapel entrance, the steeple is said by its builders to be the tallest on any religious building in North Carolina. The chapel will be dedicated in October.

In Memoriam

The Rev. James Ozzie Sumner, 78, retired Baptist minister and a Gardner-Webb alumnus, died March 11 at his Lenoir home. Pastor of many churches in the two Carolinas, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Corde Lantz Sumner, a G-W alumna, and other family members.

Dr. Aked Ewald Nelson, a former faculty member, died April 21, 1972.

Correction

Last month's issue incorrectly stated that Dr. Vance Heymer studied at Bob Jones University. The article should have indicated that the university conferred an honorary doctor's degree upon this outstanding minister, as did Gardner-Webb in its spring commencement exercise.
