To our dedicated readers:

This is Dr. Mitch Porter, and I have officially taken over as the Editor for the Journal of Organizational and Educational Leadership. Dr. Jim Palermo has retired from the journal and has entrusted me to pave the way for an even bigger and better journal. My expertise is in Educational Research, Psychology, and Psychometrics. My research focus includes scale assessment and non-cognitive skills such as grit and motivation.

As a new faculty at Gardner-Webb University, I am excited to take on this responsibility and develop new strategies for strengthening JOEL. I hope that my knowledge in methodologies and assessment can open up new pathways and possibilities for the types of article submissions we've been getting. As an Executive Member of North Carolina Professors of Educational Leadership, I plan to build a strong network with my peers to take JOEL to new heights.

Our readership is constantly growing, and it is because of you we are able to make JOEL a relevant journal in the field of educational leadership. Thank you for your continued interest in JOEL and educational leadership, and if you ever have a question about a submission, feel free to contact me at mporter1@gardner-webb.edu.

Respectfully,

Mitch Porter
