As we leave these snow white walls
Around the world to roam,
We will always bear this in mind,
That Gardner-Webb is our home.

And when we're out in this cold, cold world,
With the wintry winds and snow,
We will all come back to Gardner-Webb
For there is no other place to go.

And when we miss our favorite friends,
That we have known so long,
We will all come back to Gardner-Webb,
For that is where we belong.

Wherever we may go
North, south, east or west,
We will always remember Gardner-Webb
For we never forget the best.

We may be surrounded by happiness,
We may be surrounded by war,
But we will never forget dear Gardner-Webb
Wherever we chance to go.

GWU Centennial: 1905-2005

With 2003 upon us, Gardner-Webb is closing in on its Centennial celebration. And while many GWU offices are filled with memorabilia from decades past, there are hundreds of alumni and friends who have chosen to share with us their special pieces of our history. At left is a poem that appeared in the April 1945 edition of the Gardner-Webb Pilot entitled "A Tribute to Gardner-Webb."

If you have items of interest to share as we countdown to the Centennial, send them to: The Web magazine, attn: Matt Webber, PO Box 997, Boiling Springs, NC 28017.

President Chris White Resigns After More Than 16 Years at GWU

Gardner-Webb University President Dr. Chris White resigned his position effective October 25 after more than 16 years as arguably the most influential leader in the university's 97-year history.

White's resignation came in the wake of scrutiny of an action he took two years ago to assist a student who had been directed to take steps to regain lost eligibility as an athlete but then was told by advising officials that those steps were insufficient. In turn, White's actions to step in and mediate the eligibility matter were deemed inappropriate by several faculty members.

An investigation into the allegations, which was conducted by an independent law firm, found that the president had acted within his rights to assist the student and that no school policy had been broken. Subsequently, the GWU Board of Trustees affirmed White, but distractions on campus that were fueled by negative publicity left Dr. White feeling that his resignation would help the university more effectively regain its focus.

With mixed reaction on and off campus, Chris White's resignation leaves Gardner-Webb searching for its eleventh president. At an October 31st meeting, the Board of Trustees named an interim president (see page 4 of this issue) until it can find that new leader, but the Board said there is no timeframe of when that search will be completed.

White, who came to GWU from Elon College in 1986, took over a university that was struggling with debt and saddled with sagging enrollment and turned it into a recognized regional university that now competes on the NCAA Division I level.

GWU endowment increased seven-fold during his tenure, while enrollment tripled and the number of faculty doubled.

Programmatic changes especially marked White's career at GWU. In 1993 both the School of Divinity (and Master of Divinity degree program) and Master of Business Administration program were created. The School of Divinity, begun with virtually no resources, has flourished and become known nationally for its curriculum and faculty. The MBA Program also has exceeded expectations, growing into one of the five largest in North Carolina.

Among the many other significant achievements that took place under White's guidance are:

- * Gardner-Webb successfully transitioned from "college" to "university" status;
- * an Honors program was initiated;
- * a fully staffed counseling center was created;
- * the policy of fully staffed residence halls was created;
- * GWU achieved national recognition by the John Templeton Foundation (for character-building programs), US News and World Report's Guide to Best Colleges, Executive Forum (recognizing emerging business schools in America), and the Portfolio of Excellence (a national study that identifies "exemplary" curriculums);

- * Noel Hall, home to the School of Divinity, was built;
- * the unfinished Williams Observatory was completed;
- * GWU's first-ever doctoral program (D.Min) was created;
- * the graduate MAcc, IMBA and MSN programs were created;
- * NCATE accreditation for School of Education was achieved;
- * SACS and NASM accreditations were reaffirmed;
- * ATS accreditation for School of Divinity was achieved;
- * the first fund for any divinity school in America was created that paid the way for its students to visit the Holy Land each year;

- * a $34 million capital campaign for new facilities, scholarships, and technology was completed;
- * University Commons apartments were constructed;

- * Hamrick Hall was restored (it had not been in use for nearly 15 years);

- * old Boiling Springs Elementary School was restored to be a new Communication Studies facility;
- * new tennis courts and Springs Athletics facility were built;
- * Bost Pool completely renovated;
- * new Physical Plant facility was secured;

- * new Wellness Center was built;
- * new soccer complex was built and GWU became home to the Greater Cleveland County Soccer Association (GCCSA);

- * the first three fully endowed professorships in GWU history were established that seek to attract the best and brightest faculty to campus;

- * GWU went from NAIA to Division II, and then to NCAA Division I in athletics;
- * the construction of the Lake Hollifield Complex and Carillon was completed;
- * the Broyhill Adventure Course was created;
- * study abroad/learning exchange programs in Dohto, Japan, and South Korea were established;
- * WGWG-FM campus radio station was upgraded from 4,650 watts to 50,000 watts;
- * Dover Campus Center was renovated;
- * a strategic plan and master plan were completed this past year, detailing plans for GWU growth over the next decade;
- * campus has been expanded with the addition of 10 parcels of land;
- * the annual "Campus Clean-Up Day" was initiated;
- * the Fleming-White Award for Excellence in Teaching ("faculty member of the year award") was created, as well as Female and Male Staff Member of the Year awards;
- * annual recognition of employees through "Apples and Accolades" was established;
- * the Provost position was created;
- * the food service provider (now Marriott) for the school cafeteria was upgraded;
- * the Presidential Associates were established;
- * full-tuition academic scholarships were established (Academic Fellows) and 80 percent scholarships were created (Presidential Scholars);
- * new branch campuses – "GWU at Statesville" and "GWU at Charlotte" – were completed and opened in 2002.

Below: Other notable achievements include the renovation of a once-condemned Hamrick Hall; the establishment of Presidential Scholarships and endowed professorships; and the transition to Division I athletics.

Dr. Frank Campbell Named As Interim President

The Gardner-Webb Board of Trustees at its October 31, 2002, voted unanimously to name Dr. Frank Campbell as interim president. Campbell recently retired as president of Averett University in Danville, Va., after 17 years. He began work as GWU's interim on Monday, November 4.

Campbell served as a minister of Baptist churches in Newport, Tenn., Oxford, N.C., and Raleigh, N.C., before becoming the pastor of First Baptist Church of Statesville, N.C., in 1966. During what would be a 19-year tenure at Statesville, Campbell served in a variety of capacities in North Carolina's Baptist State Convention including terms as president of the convention and as president of the Council on Christian Higher Education. During the three years he led North Carolina's Council on Christian Higher Education he worked closely with the presidents of the state's seven Baptist colleges.

"We are delighted that an outstanding leader like Dr. Campbell is willing to serve as our interim president and chief executive officer," said E. Thomas Hardin, chair of the GWU Board of Trustees. "He brings solid credentials of achievement as a university president and was highly respected for his leadership in the North Carolina Baptist community."

Dr. Campbell completed his B.A. degree at Carson-Newman College; the Bachelor of Divinity, Master of Theology, and Doctor of Ministry degrees at Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary; a Doctor of Divinity degree at Wake Forest University; and a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Kyungnam University in Masan, Korea.

Under the leadership of Dr. Frank Campbell at Averett (1985-2002), the university:

- achieved university status;
- raised nearly $50 million;

- increased its endowment from $240,000 to nearly $27 million;

- constructed the Grousbeck Music Building, the Equestrian Center, the North Campus, Averett Commons Apartments, and a football facility;

- introduced the Graduate and Professional Studies Program;

- added the master of arts in teaching degree and the master of business administration degree;

- expanded the athletic program to include men's baseball, football and women's soccer;

- completed Frith Hall and eliminated the debt on the building;

- remodeled and air-conditioned Pritchett Auditorium;

- remodeled every building on campus at least once;

- expanded the campus from 19 acres to 204 acres;

- successfully completed two re-accreditations;

- forged a partnership with Virginia Tech and Danville Community College for the creation of the Institute for Advanced Learning and Research.

Campbell also was elected president of the Council of Independent Colleges in Virginia and president of the Dixie Athletic Conference.

"We are delighted that an outstanding leader like Dr. Campbell is willing to serve as our interim president and chief executive officer," said E. Thomas Hardin, chair of the GWU Board of Trustees. "He brings solid credentials of achievement as a university president and was highly respected for his leadership in the North Carolina Baptist community."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE GARDNER-WEBB FAMILY:

Each of you has a special connection to Gardner-Webb University. Therefore, when GWU hurts, you also hurt. It is no secret that this institution has felt the sting of controversy in recent months, but there are many who are praying for this university to persevere through these trying times.

As the interim president, the Gardner-Webb Board of Trustees has given me the opportunity to help our university press forward. It will be no easy task, but then again nothing worth achieving is ever easy. As I begin this job I humbly ask for your prayers, your support, your feedback and your patience.

I will do my best for this great school, but I cannot do it alone. I need your support. Remember why you came to admire, invest in and support Gardner-Webb. Please rekindle that passion. A school such as ours can only succeed when its constituencies – the people who love it the most – are united.

The history of Gardner-Webb is well known to me. As past president of the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina, and as a former executive director of the convention's Council on Christian Higher Education, I gained a deep fondness for this school. I come to this position to be part of the solution; not for fortune or glory, but out of obligation to the many who have given of themselves to grow this institution into what it is today.

My goal is to talk with as many of you as possible. My goal also is to make effective decisions in the short time I have to prepare this university for a permanent leader who can lead Gardner-Webb to achieve its long-term vision. In order to do that, however, I ask that we all resolve to overcome the past, set our sights on a very bright future, and work together to enhance the reputation of this esteemed institution.

GARDNER-WEBB VP GETS PRESIDENT'S POST AT BREVARD

Brevard College announced this fall the election of Dr. Drew Van Horn, GWU vice president, as the twelfth president to lead the four-year comprehensive liberal arts institution.

Effective September 30, he succeeded Dr. J. William Moncrief, who announced his plans to retire earlier this year.

Faculty, staff and students gathered on the Brevard campus for the special announcement by Brevard College Board of Trustees Chair Dyeann B. Jordan.

"We are confident that Dr. Van Horn is the person to be Brevard College's next president," said Jordan. "He has the experience, the knowledge, the credentials, the desire and the personality. With the help of the faculty, staff, students and the trustees, Dr. Van Horn will successfully lead this institution forward."

"I am excited about the team atmosphere at Brevard College," said Dr. Van Horn. "The dedication and loyalty of the College's faculty, staff and trustees is evident. I feel fortunate to be part of this community."

Since 1996, Dr. Van Horn served as the Vice President for University Relations and Advancement at Gardner-Webb, where he was responsible for the advancement and public relations efforts for the university.

Drew Van Horn

Under Dr. Van Horn's tenure, fundraising at the university reached an all-time high. He successfully completed a $30 million comprehensive campaign. Dr. Van Horn also implemented a program which helped increase total giving from $3.5 million to $6 million annually. He was also instrumental in the University receiving their first grants from the Kresge Foundation and the Lilly Foundation.

Dr. Van Horn and his wife, Camille, have two children, Julia and Jackson.

Since 1996, Brevard College has been involved in a successful transition from a two-year to a four-year institution. It is now fully accredited as a four-year college, and its programs have received national recognition.

Recently, Brevard College was ranked 2nd in the nation for its First Year Experience program by U.S.

News and World Report. The college was also ranked 14th in "Best Value" among comprehensive colleges in the South for the quality of its academic programs compared to net cost of attendance at the institution, and it was recognized among Southern Comprehensive Colleges for its campus diversity and high proportion of classes with fewer than 20 students.

SUMMER GRADUATION SEES FIRST MACC STUDENTS RECEIVE DEGREES

GWU's 2002 summer graduation ceremony on August 3rd saw 275 receive undergraduate and graduate degrees and marked the first-ever graduating class of the university's new Master of Accountancy (MAcc) program.

The ceremony, which took place in front of over 4,000 in the Paul Porter Arena on campus, featured a keynote address by Anthony Strange, a 1983 GWU alumnus who is founder and CEO of Integrated Business Systems, Inc., in Richmond, Va. Strange also serves the GWU Board of Trustees.

The Master of Accountancy program, begun at Gardner-Webb three years ago, is conducted through the GWU Graduate School of Business. The program's first-ever graduates were Jane Marie Glawson Powell of Shelby; Jeanne Woolbert Kincaid of Mooresboro; and Randall Elbert Sheffield of Morganton, NC.

NEGBENEBOR NAMED NEW BUSINESS DEAN

In October Dr. Anthony Negbenebor was named dean of the GWU School of Business.

Negbenebor, a former Fleming - White Award winner as the institution's faculty member of the year, is a professor of economics and international business who has built Gardner-Webb's Master of Business Administration (MBA) Program into one of the top five in the state. He also is responsible for that program being held in six locations across North and South Carolina. Recently, Negbenebor guided the GWU

Graduate School of Business into offering a master of accountancy (MAcc) program, which produced its first graduates in August 2002. Also this year he has begun an International Masters of Business Administration (IMBA) Program at Gardner-Webb.

Negbenebor becomes the first African-American to hold a dean's post at the university.

CAMPUS REMEMBERS SEPTEMBER 11 WITH MOVING CEREMONY

One year after the September 11 terrorist attacks on America, the Gardner-Webb community remembered that fateful day with a ceremony on the Quad.

Several hundred from the GWU and Boiling Springs communities paid tribute to public safety officials and prayed for the nation and the families of those killed last September.

The campus flag also flew at half-mast from dawn to dusk that day.

LANDMARK ANNOUNCEMENTS HIGHLIGHT NEW YEAR'S OPENING CEREMONIES

On Monday, August 26, the M. Christopher White School of Divinity held its traditional opening convocation ceremonies with news that Dr. Doug Dickens had been named to fill the newly created W. Randall Lolley Chair of Pastoral Studies. It was revealed that friends and former church members of Dr. Lolley had contributed nearly $900,000 toward the Chair's establishment in his honor, far surpassing the required $500,000 needed to create an endowed faculty position at GWU.

Dickens' installation as occupant of the new Chair was part of a ceremony that featured greetings from Dr. James Royston, executive director/treasurer of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, and a sermon by Dr. Dan Day, pastor of First Baptist Church of Raleigh. Dr. Day's address was a challenge to divinity students to "consider today becoming a hero, not for the masses, but for the precious few to whom you will minister." Dr. Lolley was on hand to inaugurate the chair and spoke at the Convocation Luncheon on the subject "Theological Education: Retrospect and Prospect."

Additionally, the School of Divinity welcomed 78 new students this semester, its largest entering class in its nine-year history. The newcomers contribute significantly to the School's most diverse student body ever in terms of race, gender, age, and geography. For example, the average age of a GWU divinity student is now 29, compared to the average age in all ATS schools, which is 38, according to Dr. R. Wayne Stacy, GWU divinity dean. The School now serves a record 188 students in the Master of Divinity (M.Div.) program and 20 in the one-year-old Doctor of Ministry (D.Min.) program, placing the School's total enrollment over the 200 mark for the first time in its history.

The School of Divinity also welcomed three new faculty members with its inspiring and impressive installation ceremony in which each new faculty member inscribes his/her name in the School's Faculty Bible, thereby affirming his/her commitment to the authority of the Scriptures. They were Dr. James D. Nogalski (Associate Professor of Old Testament), Mary D. Roby, (Theological Librarian), and Dr. Danny M. West, (Associate Professor of Pastoral Studies and Director of the School of Divinity's Center for Congregational Enrichment).

At opening convocation ceremonies for undergraduate students the following day Gardner-Webb welcomed to its campus this academic year nearly 600 first-time students as well as 14 new full-time faculty members. Also announced was the completion of the Dover Foundation Chair of Business Administration. With its funding also completed earlier in the calendar year, the Dover Chair was made possible by gifts totaling over $500,000 by the Dover Foundation Inc., of Shelby, NC.

RAYMOND

It's difficult to ignore the daily news reports that broadcast the growing and continued violence taking place around the world. But Dr. Chad Raymond, a new assistant professor of political science at Gardner-Webb, teaches students that it's important to recognize the issues and concerns all over the globe.

"One of the things I hope students learn is that not everyone in the world thinks the way Americans do," he says.

Dr. Raymond studied political science and obtained both his bachelors and masters degree from MIT. He also received his doctorate degree in political science from the University of Hawaii. Hoping to travel, Dr. Raymond worked for the D.E.A. for awhile, but was eventually called back to the classroom.

It was there that he could continue to study political and historical events around the world.

And he hopes to share that interest with the students at Gardner-Webb.

"What fascinates me is that large numbers of people in the world don't have the same things we have. We are guaranteed shelter and food. We're very comfortable. But there are people who don't have that security and they have to deal with the fact that they don't have enough food to eat tomorrow. So I like to look at the reasons why people make their decisions the way they do."

The motives behind those actions is exactly what he tries to get students to see as well.

"There are a lot of young people who don't really understand why these problems have developed and why the U.S. is involved in these types of situations," he says. "I try to give them the information they need so they can understand why we are in these types of situations."

Accrediting Body Gives Nursing High Marks

During the accreditation site visit to GWU's School of Nursing programs October 14-16, 2002, all three nursing programs were reviewed for accreditation by the National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission (NLNAC), according to Dr. Shirley Toney, nursing dean. The five on-site program evaluators recommended to the NLNAC Evaluation Review Committee continuing accreditation for the ADN and BSN programs and initial accreditation for the new MSN program. The MSN program will graduate its first students in December 2002. The Evaluation Review Panel meets in Chicago in February 2003. The faculty used the new 2002 NLNAC accreditation for the self-study report and visit.

Family Ties

Meet Walter, Becca and Amanda Miller, siblings from Shelby who have a unique connection to Gardner-Webb University. Walter is a recent GWU graduate who is sticking around campus to work on a master of divinity degree. Becca is a junior at GWU, and Amanda is the baby sister who is a freshman this semester.

When it comes to fitting in and adjusting to college life, there is lots of advice to be given and heard these days around the Miller dinner table on Sundays.

Amanda realizes she won't be the typical freshman because of Becca and Walter physically being so close to her.

However, she says the roles her brother and sister fill are those every freshman needs.

"Even when I was in high school I got to know some of the upperclassmen at the school I would be enrolling in, and I think that's the important thing," explained Amanda.

"Walter and Becca of course counted as two of those upperclassmen but the others

I knew have given me some good advice, too. I have learned that one of the keys to adjusting is talking to someone who has been through it. They don't mind telling you what they learned from their experience."

It seems Amanda is learning from these voices of experience that nearly every freshman falls into one of two extreme categories: the newcomer who tries too hard to fit in and adjust, and the one who retreats into a shell and is hesitant about trying to adapt.

Walter and Becca have preached this concept to little sister and they both agree that Amanda needs to find a good balance between overdoing it and not trying hard enough.

"Personally I think the key for any freshman is to take advantage of that first week after move-in and before classes start to meet as many people as possible," says Becca. "Because once you get into your daily routine of classes and meal times, you'll end up seeing the same people every day. Once it's over, you never get that first week back to meet lots of people."

Walter agrees, saying, "Yeah, those first few days are a lot like summer camp. It's cool and everyone's excited, but once classes start, reality sets in and you begin concentrating on school stuff more than meeting people and trying to get adjusted."

Big brother and big sister also agree, however, that while trying to meet people soon after move-in is invaluable, Amanda shouldn't be so enthusiastic about trying to fit in that she finds herself in situations that are uncomfortable.

"I've been told a lot that I shouldn't try so hard to fit in that I forget who I am," says Amanda. "Both Walter and Becca have said they've seen people change themselves to be accepted, and not for the better. It sounds like common sense, but both of them say to just be myself and let things happen naturally."

As for the roommate situation, Walter says to prepare yourself for the drastically new experience of not only sharing close quarters with someone new, but also someone that may be very different from yourself. Becca chimes in, saying that how you deal with a roommate can definitely impact the kind of transition you make to college life.

"I would say to any freshman not to judge a new roommate very quickly," says Becca. "If they're a fellow freshman they're probably trying to act differently than what they normally would during those first few weeks just to make a certain kind of impression. After a while you'll begin to get to know them for who they really are."

Amanda adds with a laugh, "Yeah, I've been told to focus on the roommate thing and making friends, and to basically forget about boys for the first semester. In fact, Becca said I should just think of it as an all-girls school for the first six months because I'll have enough distractions without the dating thing to worry about." *

A FRESHMAN'S BRAVE RESPONSE TO SEPTEMBER 11

"... there was a real need for overseas missions. There were a lot of missionaries and a lot of church groups who pulled out because of their fear. I really felt burdened for the missionaries in those countries overseas because without help they can only do so much ..."

At the one-year anniversary of September 11th many students reflected on how the day made them feel. Many remembered the horror and the fear. Many remembered their need to stay close to home, family and friends. One student, however, had a unique reaction.

Kim Pace, a freshman at Gardner-Webb, is honest when she says that September 11th didn't make her want to stay home. Instead, she immediately wanted to leave the country.

Kim says, "Right after September 11th happened there was a real need for overseas missions. There were a lot of missionaries and a lot of church groups who pulled out because of their fear. I really felt burdened for the missionaries in those countries overseas because without help they can only do so much, and it's wonderful to have volunteers come in and help relieve some of the stress for at least two weeks or a month."

This past summer Kim accepted that challenge, along with a call to go to Kenya where she worked as a volunteer missionary with AIDS patients, street kids and Somalians in a refugee camp.

"A lot of the refugees were Muslim and so I was put in a position where I couldn't openly profess the Gospel as I would have loved to have done. Instead I had to learn how to become friends with people and to love them as they are and hope that one day they would ask me why I was so different and why I was there. And a lot of them did, but many faced persecution from others or their family members because of it. You take for granted the freedom that you have until you go somewhere where there is no freedom."

Kim said that even though it was difficult not to be able to openly share her faith she learned a real lesson about putting words into action.

"Many people in Kenya had preconceived notions about Christianity so I had to be an example through how I acted. A lot of times the girls would ask why we were so happy and why would we want to get on a plane and go all the way to Kenya when we have America. They believe that with America comes wealth and prosperity and that's all they've ever heard."

Although Kim has always felt a call to missions and hopes to one day go back, she also feels that her challenge and her call continue right here in the United States.

"I feel that every Christian is called to be a missionary. Not everyone is called to go overseas but God calls all us as Christians to be ministers, not just for two weeks in the summer, but every day."

Although many Americans live in fear, Kim is not afraid to live by faith.

"I feel like I'm much closer to God when I'm doing His work and when I'm doing His will. And His will for me is to minister to the lost. Jesus didn't hang out with the most esteemed of the crowd at times. He was with the beggars and with the outcasts. I feel that's where I need to be."

This past summer GWU sophomore Jonathan Terrell spent his time putting on a tie to go shake hands with some of the most powerful people in Washington. Sound important? It is. Jonathan spent the summer as an intern for Jesse Helms. But how did Jonathan go from studying history and religion in Boiling Springs, NC to studying politics in Washington, D.C.? "I was tired of my past summer jobs,"

Not Just Another Summer Job

Jonathan says, "and I decided to do something that made sense; something that counted to me and something that was valid. My grandfather suggested I apply for an internship. It turned out to be an opportunity to work for Jesse Helms. It was the first official business setting I'd ever worked in."

As an intern for the senator, Jonathan wrote letters to senators and congressman, went to hearings and learned the public relations aspect of politics, among other things. He also got to meet a lot of famous people. Once he even sat next to former first lady Hillary Clinton on the senate metro coming from the capitol.

"Politics," he says, "is definitely something that should be important for all students. Why? Because whether you like it or not, politics will affect your life. No matter what you do in life, politics will affect it.

Politics run our country. And that's what it's supposed to do. I think it has a much larger impact than most people understand."

He says that an internship also has helped him as he plans for his future. "Whether or not you decide you want to go into that field it will help you decide what you do want to do." He adds, "When I took this internship I was really thinking about my future."

FOOTBALL WINS BIG SOUTH; PLAYERS EARN DISTINCTIONS

Gardner-Webb football, with its best season in 10 years, moved into the top-25 rankings in both the USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll and The Sports Network media poll in early November.

The Bulldogs (9-1, 3-0 Big South) then went on to capture the first-ever Big South Conference Championship and match the best record posted in GWU football history, finishing with a No. 19 ranking.

The team wrapped up the regular season with the third-best win total in school history, and the best overall winning percentage (.900) in school history.

The top-25 appearances are firsts for Gardner-Webb since moving up to Division I-AA in 2000. GWU has posted a 22-9 record during that span, including wins in 13 of its last 14 games.

In the final regular season 44-13 win against Savannah State, QB Jeremy Martin threw for 351 yards and five TDs. Martin's big passing day made him the first player in Gardner-Webb history to pass for over 2,000 yards in three-straight seasons. Martin finished the 2002 regular season with 2,166 yards and 17 TDs. For his career, the Middletown, R.I., native has thrown for 8,025 yards and 60 TDs, good for second on both career charts at Gardner-Webb.

More notable news came when junior Chris Foster became the first player in the school's football history to earn

Foster

Verizon Academic All-District honors, landing on the District III first-team.

The 5-foot-6, 186-pound running back carries a cumulative grade point average of 3.667 with a major in Education. He has been Gardner-Webb's leading rusher this season with a career-high 627 yards and seven TDs on 107 carries. His running was a major reason for the No. 19 Bulldogs' 9-1 record and surge into the Division I-AA top-25.

The Verizon Academic All-District III Team comprises players from Division I-A and Division I-AA schools in the states of Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia. Foster shared the first-team offensive backfield with quarterback David Greene of Georgia (Management) and running back Alex Wade of Duke (History).

GWU Coach Named One of the ACC's 50 All-Time Greatest Golfers

Gardner-Webb head golf coach Tee Burton, in his third season at the helm of both men's and women's programs, was named to the Atlantic Coast Conference's 50th Anniversary Golf Team this Fall.

Burton, who was a three-time All-ACC selection at the University of North Carolina, spent 1988-1991 on the links with the Tar Heels.

The Shelby, N.C., native reached the finals of the 1991 North and South Amateur during his career, and won four different individual titles at various tournaments during his time in Chapel Hill, earning honorable mention All-America honors in the process.

Last season, Burton, who is a graduate of nearby Crest High School, directed the Gardner-Webb men to a National Christian College Athletic Association title, and has both squads poised to compete in the Division I Atlantic Sun Conference in 2002-2003.

Other notable members of the team include Arnold Palmer (Wake Forest), David Duval (Georgia Tech), Curtis Strange (Wake Forest), Jay Haas (Wake Forest), Scott Hoch (Wake Forest) Matt Kuchar (Georgia Tech) and Stewart Cink (Georgia Tech).

Men's Basketball Faces Brutal Schedule

The men's basketball team this year will find out what it means to compete at the highest level. In fact, reporters and coaches around the nation are wondering if a victory is possible within the Runnin' Bulldogs' first 14 games.

If the task of playing in the competitive Atlantic Sun Conference wasn't enough, GWU faces the challenge of a 29-game slate that features three ACC schools, one SEC school, one Big East school and a total of nine games against programs that have participated in at least one NCAA Tournament since 1998.

The Runnin' Bulldogs, who have registered 70 wins over the past three seasons, opened the 2002-2003 regular season at SEC member Tennessee on November 22.

Gardner-Webb has high-profile games at Georgia Tech (Dec. 1), Clemson (Dec. 14), and preseason top-10 choice Virginia (Dec. 19, 7:30 p.m.). GWU's game at Clemson will be played in Anderson, S.C., at the Anderson Civic Center.

GWU also has challenging non-conference road games at Colorado State (Dec. 7), Eastern Michigan (Dec. 21, 7 p.m.), Appalachian State (Jan. 15, 7 p.m.) and Winthrop (Feb. 12, 7 p.m.). The Bulldogs will host Appalachian State (Dec. 4) and Winthrop (Nov. 27, 7:30 p.m.) as part of a home-and-home series with both schools.

The Runnin' Bulldogs will participate in the annual Jim Thorpe Classic in Las Vegas, Nev., in late December, taking on SMU (Dec. 28, 11 p.m.) and West Virginia (Dec. 29, 12 p.m.) in the exempt tournament.

GWU is picked to finish sixth in the Atlantic Sun Conference's North Division this season, according to the 2002-2003 A-Sun preseason media and coaches polls released Tuesday by the conference office.

The 12-team league will play a two-division format this season, with an even six teams in each division. The Runnin' Bulldogs (23-9 last season) return one starter, sophomore Otis Daniels (10.3 ppg), are projected 12th of 12 teams by the coaches and 11th of 12 teams by the leaguers media. GWU garnered five more points than Stetson in the media poll, as the Hatters were picked to finish last in the South Division.

Under NCAA rules for new Division I members, Gardner-Webb is not eligible for the leaguers automatic bid for two seasons and is not eligible to compete in the A-Sun Tournament to be held at Georgia State on March 6-8 in Atlanta.

Georgia State, coached by Lefty Driesell, is picked to win the North Division and is also the preseason tournament favorite in both polls. Jacksonville was a unanimous selection to win the South Division crown.

Otis Daniels gave GWU a lift in '01-02 as a freshman.

Women's Basketball Hopes To Rebound

Gardner-Webb's Barry Street, in his first full season as head coach of the women's basketball program, faces a difficult challenge himself this year as a new participant in the Atlantic Sun Conference. Among the opponents for the Lady Bulldogs are: Western Carolina, High Point, Birmingham Southern, Bethune Cookman, Winthrop, William & Mary, UNC Charlotte, St. Louis, Indiana State and East Carolina.

The Lady Bulldogs, who struggled to a 3-24 record last year while battling a tough schedule and numerous injuries, open their A-Sun conference schedule on January 11 against Campbell.

'Hands On' Alumnus Making His Mark At Home And Abroad

Glenn Walker '73 BA is not your typical Southern Baptist pastor. Walker does not focus his time in a typical church office, tending to the needs of one church congregation. Instead, most of his time and effort is concentrated on the lost and new Christians in the Ukraine, Brazil, South Africa, Kenya, Zambia, Northern Africa, Honduras, Ukraine, Malawi, Turkey, Rochester, NY, New York City, to name a few locations. That's in addition to local missions opportunities found closer to his Shelby, NC, home in places like Ramblewood, Belwood or with the new project for teenage girls in Shelby, "Christine's Home."

The Reverend Walker is the founder and director of Hands On Missions, Inc., a nonprofit organization that provides opportunities for Christians to learn about and actively participate in missions locally, throughout the United States, and internationally. His responsibilities include recruiting mission trip participants as well as planning, training, and leading the mission trips. The goal of these mission trips is to help meet the spiritual, physical, and emotional needs of both individuals and churches throughout the world.

This passion for missions took flight in 1997 when Reverend Walker started Hands On Missions to focus on international missions. He was pastor of Double Springs Baptist Church at the time and felt God's call to begin this ministry. Hands on Missions has since expanded to include local missions.

The international mission trips, more often than not, include adjustments for the participants to various cultures. Rita Scism, associate director of Hands On Missions, reflects on conditions she expects a group preparing to travel to Turkey to encounter, "cold showers, lukewarm sodas, body odor from unwashed bodies, squat toilets, toilet paper only available for money, ..." The focus of the trip to Turkey, being 99.9 percent Muslim, was a prayer walk through the seven cities and sites of the seven churches of Revelation. Other international trips include providing medical assistance, physical labor and Bible study guidance.

Local mission opportunities include Christine's Home, which is a project Hands On Missions has begun seeking funds to establish to assist teenage girls who are in foster care. The home, once established, will provide "a Christian environment of His love and nurturing to nine young people." The Rev. Walker explains, "God has given us the vision, but we can't do this on our own." Hands On Missions is working to raise the funds to establish the home.

Hands On Shelby is another local missions effort that has grown out of Hands On Missions. Hands On Shelby was formed by a group of Hands On Missions volunteers to minister to the residents of the inner-city Shelby, NC, area. Using a program similar to a backyard Bible club, the team shares the story of Christ with area children. "Songs, stories, crafts, and most importantly, hugs, tell of God's amazing love," explains Walker. Future plans include programs for youth and adults. Yet another spin-off program is Hands On Belwood, covering the Belwood, Fallston, Lawndale and Casar, NC, areas.

Reverend Walker speaks at churches when his schedule permits. He served as interim pastor at Double Springs Baptist Church in 2002, and is moderator for the Kings Mountain Baptist Association. Walker is married to Rachel, a registered nurse, and they have two children, Jimmy and Jonya. Reverend Glenn Walker can be reached through the Hands On Mission Web site at www.handsonmissions.org or by e-mail at homnc@carolina.rr.com.

GARDNER-WEBB UNIVERSITY

Honor Roll of Donors
2001-2002

The Honor Roll of Donors is a special opportunity for Gardner-Webb University to recognize those who have supported the institution through the sharing of their resources.

Gifts made to GWU over the last year have helped to further place the university among the elite colleges and universities in the Southeast and the nation. Great strides have been made to offer additional scholarship assistance, expanded and modern facilities, and increased offerings on the undergraduate, graduate and doctoral levels. Without the support of these donors, Gardner-Webb would not be the institution to which students worldwide come to learn and grow.

The Honor Roll gives special recognition to those who have given $1,000 or more to the university in the 2001-2002 academic year. These donors gain membership into the University Club as a result of their giving level.

UNDERGRADUATE DAY ALUMNI

Macy Blanton '45 has written three books; "Lessons on Living from Egypt, Jordan and the Holy Land," "Answered Prayer," and "Dr. Lucinda and The Civil War." She makes these books available for all who are interested with a suggested donation to cover costs of printing. You may contact the GWU Office of Alumni & Parent Relations at 704-406-3862 with inquiries.

Elizabeth H. Grigg '48 AA plans to move to a Baptist retirement home, The Gardens of Taylor Glen, in Concord, NC, in late 2002. Elizabeth is a retired AG Resource teacher from Gaston County Schools. Her late husband, Robert B. Grigg, Jr, was a minister. You may e-mail her at: ehgrigg@juno.com

Elizabeth Grigg and her late husband, Robert

William "Bill" S. Barkley Sr. '49 and Martha Carver Barkley celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in June of 2002. Their son, Bill Barkley, Jr. USMC (deceased) and Janice B. Brown were both Gardner-Webb graduates. Bill and Martha have two other sons: Jeffrey and Matthew Barkley. They also have 12 grandchildren.

Jack Miller Allison '56 has retired as Gaffney Municipal Court Judge after 26 years of service as a judge.

Mary Gail Dalton Davis '59 AA continues to serve as the senior's center manager for the Older Americans' Council where she began work in 1992. She is much involved with her home church activities. Davis resides in GA.

Rev. Floyd Benfield '63 AA will be featured in the Whole Blood Donor Hall of Fame Calendar produced by the Fenwal Division of Baxter Healthcare Corp., a company that supplies products to blood banks nationwide. He received the Hall of Fame honor in 2001. Rev. Benfield serves as pastor of Cedar Falls Baptist Church. He has been preaching since he was 20 years of age. He has donated blood more than 100 times and is up to 16 gallons in donations.

Drew Bridges '67 was recently elected VP of the NC Psychiatric Association. Drew works at Granville County Mental Health. He would like to hear from classmates. E-mail: phrendrew@aol.com

SPOTLIGHT: Jack D. King '75 was conferred the degree of Juris Doctor in February 2002, from Barry University School of Law. After graduating with a BS degree in Business Administration from Gardner-Webb, he received a master's degree in Business Administration from Pfeiffer University in 1988.

Immediately upon graduation from Gardner-Webb, King entered the 93rd Officer Candidate Course, Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Marine Corps Base, Quantico, VA, where upon completion, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant. He was then assigned to The Basic School for Marine Officers, Class 2-76, Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Marine Corps Base, Quantico, VA, where US Marine Lieutenants undergo intense training in leadership and the art of warfare.

After completing the six month school, he was assigned to the United States Naval Flight School, Naval Air Training Command, Marine Air Training Support Group, Naval Air Station Pensacola, Pensacola, FL.

Upon completion of the eighteen month school, King earned the coveted "Wings of Gold" and was designated a Naval Aviator. King also graduated from the United States Naval Intelligence School, Naval Landing Force Training Command, Little Creek Naval Base, Norfolk, VA. He earned the rank of Major while serving in the United States Marine Corps for 11 years.

King earned two professional teaching certificates while teaching full-time and attending Barry University's School of Law's evening division. He also earned the Florida Real Estate License and a Florida Real Estate Appraiser License while attending law school. He has held a NC Real Estate Broker's license for 23 years. King is a Federal Aviation Administration certificated commercial/commercial instrument pilot and was trained in both fixed-wing and rotary-wing aircraft during US Naval Flight School training.

King's wife, Hope Hathcock King, graduated from GWU in 1975.

His mother, Ruth Ware King, graduated from GWU in 1945. His sister, Norma King Pettus, also graduated from GWU in the first four year class in 1971; as well as his brother, Bruce W. King (1983); brother-in-law, John Pettus (1972); and sister-in-law, Faith Hathcock Sawyer (1978).

"We are a Gardner-Webb family," King says. King has also served on the Gardner-Webb Alumni Board for 11 years, serving as president of the board twice.

June Campbell '77 BA is working for the International Mission Board and in Prague. While there, she ran into Matthew and Becky Stephens, also GWU alumni working with the International Mission Board.

Vista Jones Rainey '78 BA was hooded in May 2002, at UNCG upon completion of a PhD in Music Education. Vista works as an assistant principal and is married to Michael Lynn Rainey, owner of Sports Memories. E-mail: mvrainey@ccarolina.rr.com

Alum Finds Niche in DEA

Special Agent Steve Migioia '78 B.S. works complex narcotics investigations involving domestic and international drug trafficking, sometimes working undercover, and uncovering drug cartels.

This highly awarded special agent began his education at Gardner-Webb, obtaining a degree in Pre-Veterinary Medicine. He now works as a Senior Special Agent assigned to the Charleston, SC, Resident Office/Atlanta Field Division of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), where he has worked for 12 years.

In 2000, Special Agent Migioia earned the Strom Thurmond Award for Excellence in Law Enforcement. He was one of four recipients honored by the US attorney's office that year for his work. Agent Migioia has been the case agent representing the DEA on several Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force cases in the Charleston area; cases that resulted in over 200 arrests and over $500,000 in assets seized. As his Strom Thurmond Award press release states, "Special Agent Migioia is known as an able and aggressive investigator who concentrates his efforts against the highest level narcotics violators, both domestically and internationally."

After leaving GWU, Agent Migioia received a master's degree in Animal Science from the University of Tennessee and began the Ph.D program. That is when he found out about the Drug Enforcement Administration opportunities and pursued the career he works in today. Migioia says proudly, "My true awards are my two children, Zack and Ashely, and my wife, Linda."

ABBIE MILLER MITCHELL, KNOWN AS 'MISS ABBIE,' PASSES AWAY AT 94

Mrs. Abbie Miller Mitchell, 94, passed away in July. A former Gardner-Webb faculty member, she was a resident of the Leisure Years Nursing Home in Owensboro, Ky., at the time of her death. She was preceded in death by her husband, Clyde Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell, a Colorado native, retired from Kentucky Wesleyan College as a music teacher after leaving Gardner-Webb. She began her employment at what was known as Boiling Springs Junior College in 1937 and her tenure here covered 27 years. She left Gardner-Webb in 1963.

While a member of our faculty, she taught piano and served as head of the Music Department. She considered the Department to be thriving during her time here and she credited President George Burnett and the Rev. John W. Suttle for keeping the college alive during those years.

"Miss Abbie," as she was known, projected a vivacious and optimistic spirit during her lifetime. Of her years at Gardner-Webb she said, "If I had the same time at the same salary, I would do it again. My years at the college were some of the best years of my productive life."

CREATING A LEGACY

Much of what Gardner-Webb has achieved today and will in the future depends upon individuals and families who create planned gifts during their lifetimes. Mrs. Mozelle Costner Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Truitt J. Beard recently utilized GWU's Office of Gift Planning to create lasting legacies. The Beards and Mrs. Parker, along with their professional advisors, examined closely the many benefits offered by a Gardner-Webb Charitable Gift Annuity. The Beards and Mrs. Parker are now members of Gardner-Webb Legacy Society. If you have included Gardner-Webb in your estate plans and have not notified the university, we would appreciate you contacting us so you can be included in the meaningful society. For more information about becoming a member, you can contact the Office of Gift Planning at 704-406-3975. No information will be shared publicly without permission.

Mozelle Costner Parker, a GWU alumnus, retired educator and longtime community leader in Scotland County, NC, recently established two gift annuities. Mrs. Parker said, "As an alumnus and a former public school teacher, I want to help enable students to obtain a quality education in a Christian environment." Fifty percent of the principal that will someday come to Gardner-Webb will be added to the W.F. and Mozelle Costner Parker Endowed Teaching Scholarship and the remaining 50 percent will be designated for capital needs in the GWU School of Education.

During her life, Mrs. Parker is tripling her earning power over the CD rate she was receiving. She has benefited from an up-front tax deduction and will receive and will receive guaranteed payments for life, part of which of tax-free over her expected lifetime.

Truitt J. and Dorothy I. Beard also recently established a gift annuity that will make quarterly payments to both of them for their lifetimes. Mr. and Mrs. Beard are longtime friends of Gardner-Webb. Mr. Beard served as mayor of Maiden, NC, and Mrs. Beard is retired after a career in nursing. After factoring in the different elements – the current deduction, the tax-free portion of the annuity payout, and the size of the annuity – Mr. and Mrs. Beard are achieving an effective return rate of 9.4 percent on their gift.

Mrs. Beard said, "We love Gardner-Webb and by establishing a gift annuity we can someday help students studying for full-time Christian service. The principal at our deaths will create the Truitt J. and Dorothy I. Beard Christian Service Organization Scholarship Fund. In the meantime we will get a good financial return on our gift as well as great tax benefits we can use now."

TIRED OF 3% (OR LESS) RETURNS?

Does 7% or 8% strike your fancy?

It's not too good to be true!

Today, a gift annuity might pay you 8 percent or more, depending on your age. Here's even better news: it's guaranteed, and the payments to you are partially tax-free.

How does it work? A gift annuity is a contract between a donor and a charity, backed by all of the assets of the charity. It provides a fixed monthly payment for life for one or more donors.

How much can you earn? If you are 65, you will receive 6.7%; if you are 72, the payment will be 7.4%. Please see the table (at right) to find the payments for your age. There is also a "two-life table" for couples.

Best of all: your gift will help Gardner-Webb continue to offer the finest in educational opportunities in a caring, Christian environment.

Homecoming 2002

"GARDNER-WEBB USA"

Red, White and Blue were this year's homecoming colors right along with the traditional red and black of the Runnin' Bulldogs. In true Gardner-Webb style, tradition was combined with American Pride at this year's 2002 Homecoming Festivities. This year's theme "Gardner-Webb USA: Bulldog Tradition • American Pride" was a celebration of the history and tradition of Gardner-Webb while at the same time honoring and recognizing alumni and community members who have and continue to serve our country.

Veterans, service men and women, and public safety personnel were invited to attend as GWU and the Boiling Springs community gathered to recognize and "salute" our American Heroes. Leading the festivities was Major General Michael P. Sullivan, USMC (retired) who served as this year's Grand Marshall. Also joining in the celebrations was Boiling Spring native Gerald Murray, Chief Master Sergeant of the U.S. Air Force (highest enlisted rank in the Air Force).

The community had a large part in this year's activities as well. A community service, "In Memory and Honor of American Heroes," was held in the Blanton Auditorium and honored all veterans and public safety personnel. The "Singing Stars" from Boiling Springs Elementary School were featured at the service and Crest High School's marching band participated in the parade along with the Boiling Springs Fire Department and Police Department.

In the tradition of Gardner-Webb's annual homecoming festivities, the campus was rolled with toilet paper, students enjoyed a bonfire, powder puff game, concert, and dance. The parade was filled with spirited characters and colorful floats, and the whole GWU community came out to support the Runnin' Bulldogs.

Halftime announced a new Homecoming Queen, Senior Mandy Huffstetler, while several alumni and former athletes were recognized as well. L. Stephen Hendrix, was named alumnus of the year; Junior College Alumnus of the Year was Charles Jerome "Jim" Spivey; Mamadi Corra was named young alumnus of the year; and Justin Scot Alston was named future alumnus of the year. All were honored at a banquet that night. The celebrations only intensified as Gardner-Webb won 24-0 against rival University of Tennessee-Martin.

An explosion was the only thing left to celebrate the Gardner-Webb victory! In a grand display of color against the nighttime sky, the community came back to campus to watch a fireworks display along with students and alumni.

This was the first homecoming for Dawn Anthony, assistant director of alumni and parent relations, who was excited about the events that combined history, tradition, and American Pride.

"I think it was a significant homecoming in that it involved the community and the theme was something that brought everybody together to celebrate. It was a united effort between faculty, staff, students, alumni and the community. I think that's a positive step we can build on for future events."

Homecoming 2002

THE WEEKEND IN PICTURES:
Homecoming 2002 offered the opportunity for all to get into the spirit of this special weekend. Above, tailgaters got an early start on Saturday, and the Athletic Hall of Fame inductees stood proudly. At right, the Homecoming Court had its share of excited participants, and young and old alike soaked in the atmosphere. Below, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Arey enjoyed the Distinguished Gallery of Graduates event, and the students had a blast on many of the parade floats. At left, Chris Breedlove showed his true colors during the weekend's patriotic theme.

UNIVERSITY

For God • For Others • Forever

As we begin the countdown to our Centennial Celebration, we are proud to announce the introduction of the Centennial Club. The Centennial Club serves as the foundation of the Gardner-Webb Fund, the name for GWU's annual campaign for support. The members of the Centennial Club believe in GWU so strongly that they will give at least $100 to the Gardner-Webb Fund, and every dollar contributed to the Gardner-Webb Fund provides scholarship support to deserving and needy students.

There has never been a better time to show your support of Gardner-Webb and it's students. Your gift to the Centennial Club is an endorsement of Gardner-Webb University's mission – for God and Humanity – and it is an important way to help ensure that the values and traditions we have established over these past 100 years remain in place and accessible for students of all levels of financial means for the next century.

Please show your commitment to the heart of Gardner-Webb and these students with your support. Thank you.

The Fruits Of Cooperative Missions Giving

North Carolina Baptists are changing lives in a myriad of ways. Young adults are given the opportunity to earn scholarships to North Carolina colleges. Neglected children now receive warm, loving and disciplined care. Older folks get to spend their twilight years in a comfortable place. People in hospitals and their families gain comforting Spiritual support.

Baptists throughout the state enjoy reading the latest news in the Biblical Recorder along with Sunday School lessons and growth ideas for churches. Established congregations benefit from consultation and resources. Our ministers enjoy countless opportunities for theological education in our fine Baptist colleges and universities, Fruitland Baptist Bible Institute, and even non-SBC and non-North Carolina universities. Our estate stewardship planning and guidance actually helps provide eternal funding.

All this happens because we are joining together for the Kingdom's work, doing what we cannot do alone; therefore, going forth and bearing much fruit.

HELP WANTED

Gardner-Webb University is seeking a Director of Alumni and Parent Relations. The successful candidate will possess at least a bachelor's degree from Gardner-Webb University, will have a proven background in working with volunteer boards and be capable of managing multiple projects simultaneously. Reports to the VP for Institutional Advancement.

Interested individuals may send a resumé and cover letter to the Office of Human Resources, Gardner-Webb University, PO Box 997, Boiling Springs, North Carolina 28017.

THE GWU ALUMNI GIVING SPIRIT IS ALIVE AND WELL

At the annual Scholarship Luncheon in November, alumni from all decades were among those who were celebrated for their generosity. Included were John Roberts '49 (at right) and the student he supports, Ashley Hall, as well as Max and Dorothy Sink '49 (below) and the recipient of their scholarship, Erin Bradford. If you would like to benefit your alma mater through the establishment of a scholarship, contact the Gardner-Webb Office of Advancement at 704-406-4253.

Considering making a donation to your alma mater? Give a gift that will inspire and touch the lives of students for years to come—a new Steinway piano.

Now, through The Steinway Living Legacy Program, you have an unique opportunity to enhance the learning experiences of future generations of students by giving them the chance to perform on the finest pianos the world has to offer.

To thank you for participating in the Steinway Living Legacy Program, you will be named an honorary member of the Steinway Living Legacy Society. As such, you will receive a handsome gold Steinway Living Legacy lapel pin and invitations to exclusive Steinway events.

For more information about donating a Steinway piano to GWU, contact David Webb at 704-406-3975.
