School Offers Instrument, Voice Classes to All Ages, Skill Levels

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C.—The Gardner-Webb University School of Performing and Visual Arts invites members of the public to sharpen their musical skills by taking classes on campus.

Through the Community School of Music, Gardner-Webb faculty members offer classes for vocalists and instrumentalists of all skill levels, from beginner to advanced. Courses are available for both individuals and groups. Rates are $33 per half-hour and $57 per hour.

Seeking to stimulate interests in the arts and serving God through music, the school provides education to community members of all ages, regardless of professional intention or previous training. The program is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music (NASM).

For more information, contact GWU Professor of Music Dr. Patricia Sparti at psparti@gardner-webb.edu or 704-466-4710. To register for classes, contact Kim Murray at 704-406-4448 or kmurray@gardner-webb.edu.

The Gardner-Webb University Department of Music provides instruction by experienced professionals, connections with world-class performers and opportunities to share vocal and instrumental talents with the campus and greater community through participation in a variety of small ensembles and larger choirs, bands and orchestras. For more information, visit gardner-webb.edu/music.

Located in Boiling Springs, N.C., Gardner-Webb University's purpose is to advance the Kingdom of God through Christian higher education by preparing graduates for professional and personal success, instilling in them a deep commitment to service and leadership, and equipping them for well-rounded lives of lasting impact, Pro Deo et Humanitate (For God and Humanity).
