Event Helps Prepare First-Year and Transfer Students for Start of Classes in August

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C. – The preparations have been made. The must-have items have been checked off lists. The months have turned to weeks and the weeks have turned to days. The clock is winding down for many teens as they prepare to leave the comforts of home in order to begin their new season of life as full-time college students.

On June 17 and again on July 22, dozens of future students will take advantage of a GWU “Jump Start” day. Held prior to fall orientation, “Jump Start” is designed to help them finalize the details of their class schedule, housing assignments, and even billing to ensure a smooth transition before officially moving onto campus in August.

GWU parent Beth Marvin reported the Jump Start event was extremely beneficial to her and her daughter because they were able to get their questions answered and came away from the event with peace of mind as they planned for fall orientation.

“I think Jump Start really allows the students to have a more comfortable feeling and be more at ease and more at home because they will have been here and walked the campus, been in some of the buildings, met some of the students, met some of the faculty, so it really gives them a chance to just feel a part of Gardner-Webb before they actually come,” she said.
