University Lecture Program to Feature Cameron Johnson on Nov. 4

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C.—A renowned young businessman will share his journey to entrepreneurship success in a lecture at Gardner-Webb University on Nov. 4. The program is free, open to the public and presented by both the Caudill Center for Ethics and Entrepreneurship in GWU's Godbold School of Business and a university entrepreneurship class.

The guest speaker, Cameron Johnson, started his first business when he was nine years old and began a dozen successful professional ventures in his teenage years. He has been featured in Newsweek, Time Magazine, USA Today, The New York Times and on ABC, CNBC and other television programs worldwide.

Now 27 years old, Johnson regularly speaks to businesses, high school students and college audiences. His lecture at Gardner-Webb will begin at 11 a.m. in Blanton Auditorium inside Hamrick Hall on campus. Those who plan to attend must register at gardner-webb.edu/speaker.

The Caudill Center for Ethics and Entrepreneurship assists businesses with the best practices for success. For more information, visit gardner-webb.edu. For more information about Johnson, visit cameronjohnson.com.
