All-Day Event is Free and Open to Amateur Astronomers of All Ages on Jan. 24

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C. –Ever been curious about the nighttime sky? Ever wondered about the constellations? Now you have your chance to ask any questions you have at the Cleveland County Astronomical Society (CCAS) 23rd Annual Regional Meeting of Amateur Astronomers, known as BoBfest. The all-day event will be held on Jan. 24, at the Tucker Student Center on the campus of Gardner-Webb University.

BoBfest is free and open to the public with doors opening at 8 a.m. The event wraps at 5 p.m. Since this regional meeting is catered specifically towards those whose interest in astronomy is new, organizers plan to introduce participants to common astronomy terms, different types of telescopes and other resources used in this hobby.

The regional meeting will feature several speakers, astrophotography displays, swap tables, prize drawings and the opportunity for fellowship with other professional and amateur astronomers. All attendees are also encouraged to bring items for the astrophotography display. Entries can come in the form of print, digital or drawings.

Founded in 1986, by Paul Webb, the CCAS grew quickly in its formative years with a membership of 15 and the acquisition of a 16" f/4.5 Dobsonian telescope. Ken Vassey took over in 1989, and has maintained a strong presence since then. Bob Eskridge (the namesake for BoBfest) succeeded Vassey as president in 1992, and was followed by Steve Davis, Roger Ivester and Don Brooks.

During this regional meeting the society will also discuss club benefits, opportunities, and new partnerships. They will also be inviting new members to join. For more information about the regional meeting and the CCAS, visit www.ccastro.org.
