Annual Exhibit Opens on April 11

BOILING SPRINGS, N.C. – The Gardner-Webb University School of Performing and Visual Arts (Visual Division) will present its annual Undergraduate Art Exhibit, beginning Thursday, April 11 in the Art Annex, located behind the Communication Studies Hall.

The exhibit will feature the work of all undergraduate art majors and/or minor students, as well as other undergraduate students within the Communication Studies department. A wide variety of media will be displayed, including paintings and photos.

“Art, like a bittersweet chocolate, feeds your soul and preserves your heart,” shared Dr. Nancy Bottoms, professor of GWU visual arts. “Do yourself some good and enjoy art through the eyes of others.”

The event will kicked off with an opening reception as a way for participants to not only view the artwork, but also meet many of the artists. For more information about GWU’s School of Performing and Visual Arts – Visual Division, call 704-406-4362.
