

Gardner-Webb University

Digital Commons @ Gardner-Webb University

Gardner-Webb NewsCenter Archive

Gardner-Webb Publications

9-21-2011

Still Time to Enjoy Faculty-Staff Art Show!

Office of University Communications

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.gardner-webb.edu/gardner-webb-newscenter-archive>

Recommended Citation

Office of University Communications, "Still Time to Enjoy Faculty-Staff Art Show!" (2011). Gardner-Webb NewsCenter Archive. 2027.

<https://digitalcommons.gardner-webb.edu/gardner-webb-newscenter-archive/2027>

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Gardner-Webb Publications at Digital Commons @ Gardner-Webb University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Gardner-Webb NewsCenter Archive by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Gardner-Webb University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@gardner-webb.edu.

Still Time to Enjoy Faculty-Staff Art Show!

webpublish.gardner-webb.edu/newscenter/still-time-to-enjoy-faculty-staff-art-show-2/

Office of University Communications

September 21, 2011

Watch Video At:

<https://youtu.be/2N3aHeC6UBU>

There is still time to enjoy Gardner-Webb's School of Performing and Visual Arts annual Faculty/Staff Art Show, on display in the Communication Studies Hall through September 30. The exhibit features a variety of styles and pieces from a handful of Gardner-Webb's most accomplished artists.

"I think the diversity of styles, subject matter and media at this year's show is amazing," said Bell, a professor of art at Gardner-Webb. "There are some oil pastels and ceramics by Doug Knotts, five-foot fabric collage portraits by Paula Spangler Casper, serigraphs by Beth Singer-Knotts, portrait and abstract charcoal drawings by Andrea Worley, character drawings from the theater by Christopher Keene, collage illustrated writings by Nancy Rogers Bottoms, digital manipulated images by Jim Biggers, and a few of my own pastels, watercolors, acrylics, and collages," she added.

Bell explained that the show is a way to "hold us accountable as practicing artists," and to model the Visual Arts majors at Gardner-Webb for the community and surrounding counties. The exhibit is also a "teaching tool for art our majors and survey students," she added, as many professors use the exhibit as fodder for class discussion and training.

"I would gladly discuss any exhibit anytime," Bell insisted, "and I would encourage everyone to see the work for themselves!"

For more information, call Justin Humphries at 704-406-4656.